Board Approves Revised Budget

Fundraising and cogeneration were among the important topics discussed at the fall meeting of the Harding University Board of Trustees on Nov. 1.

According to President Clifton L. Ganus, more than $10 million has been raised toward the $13.1 million goal in the "Endowing A Destiny" campaign. More than $19 million also has been pledged in deferred gifts.

Development and construction of facilities to produce energy for the University is in progress. A production facility is being built directly behind the Administration Building by Co-Generation, Inc., owned by Terry and Stanley Pearson. Harding will contract to purchase electricity, steam and hot water to provide heating and cooling for the campus.

"We presently have a gas and electric cost of $1.3 million a year for our campus," Ganus said. "According to the figures we have available, we should realize a minimum savings of $180,000 per year the first five years of operation. After the five year period, we should realize a $500,000 to $600,000 saving per year."

In other action, the Board approved a revised operating budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year.

The expansion of alumni activities was also a topic of interest, Ganus said.

Special emphasis was placed on the need for alumni assistance in student recruiting. "Another 100 students would help us to alleviate some of the financial strain as well as provide students in programs where we have fewer students," Ganus said. "We already have the faculty and facilities available and the additional $500,000 would be significant."

Reports from the Board committees on development, student affairs, finance and publications were made.

Five Named Outstanding Alumni

Five graduates of Harding University received outstanding alumni awards during the 1985 Homecoming Nov. 1-2.

They were Dr. John M. White of Austin, Texas, and Dr. Arthur Williams of Abilene, Texas, from the College of Arts and Sciences; C. Mac Angel, CPA, of Searcy, from the School of Business; Dr. Furman Kearley of Monahans, Texas, from the Bible department; and Dr. Leonard Johnson of Montgomery, Ala., from the School of Education.

The awards were announced during the Black and Gold alumni banquet.

had more than 170 articles published in reference journals since 1980.

Williams, a full-time sculptor, holds degrees both in Bible and art from Harding and the master's from Harding Graduate School in Memphis. He sculpts in stone, wood, resins, steel and bronze. Williams is a 1964 graduate.

Angel, a 1957 graduate, is president of the Arkansas Society of Certified Public Accountants, having been a member of the Society since 1962. He is an officer with Angel, Humphrey, Hamilton & Co., Ltd. in Searcy.

Auditorium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for Harding's annual Management Seminar. Peters has spent over a decade analyzing the factors that contribute to corporate revitalization, to continuous innovation, to customer satisfaction enhancement, to productivity improvement, and to strategy implementation.

Peters conducted the "McKinsey Excellent Company Survey" in 1979. That survey gave birth to In Search of Excellence: Lessons from America's Best Run Companies, which he co-authored with Bob Waterman. In Search of Excellence became the first management book ever to rank number one on the National Best Seller lists. Peters founded The Tom Peters Group, five enterprises designed to accelerate the revolution in management thinking and practice that began with the publication of In Search of Excellence. The companies span consulting, research, public and private seminars, publishing, and video and audio products.

His new book, A Passion for Excellence: The Leadership Difference, co-authored by Nancy K. Austin, was released this year. He writes a weekly syndicated newspaper column with the Tribune Co., and appears on a weekly television spot on Business Times. He has authored over 50 articles for The Harvard Business Review and other publications, and writes occasionally for The Wall Street Journal. He is a Lecturer in Management at the Stanford University Graduate School of Management. Peters holds bachelor's and master's degrees in civil engineering from Cornell, and master's and Ph.D. degrees in business from Stanford. He has worked with McKinsey and Company, the management consulting firm. He was in the U.S. Navy Civil Engineer Corps in Vietnam and Washington, has worked for Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. as a consultant in R&D management, and was the President's senior drug abuse advisor.

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Kirkpatrick will close the lecture series on April 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Benson Auditorium. Kirkpatrick was appointed United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations by President Ronald Reagan in January, 1981, making her the first woman to serve as chief United States representative to the world body. She also served as a member of President Reagan's Cabinet. She resigned her position after serving the longest term of any United Nations Ambassador since the Hon. Adlai Stevenson. In April 1985, Kirkpatrick returned to private life to teach, write, and lecture.

Prior to her United Nations ambassadorship, she was Leavay University Professor at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. She also served as resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. She has now returned to both positions. She is writing a book, has undertaken a weekly syndicated newspaper column on international affairs, and signed for a series of lectures in the United States and abroad.

Through the years, Dr. Kirkpatrick has lectured extensively, in the U.S. at conferences and forums on political and international issues. She has also participated in the programs of the U.S. Information and Latin America. During the 1980 Presidential campaign, she was a member of President Reagan's foreign policy and advisory group.

For more information about the American Studies Lecture Series contact Dr. David Burks, School of Business, Box 774, Searcy, Ark. 72143 or call (501) 268-6161, ext. 240.

The American Studies Program also includes Youth Citizenship Seminars and Management Seminars. ## Andersen Holds Design Seminar

Designer Georg Andersen, a fellow of the American Society of Interior Designers who now resides in Arkansas, presented a lecture-slide seminar on interior design on the campus during November.

The seminar, sponsored by the home economics department, was set to focus on the recently added emphasis in interior design in the department.

"Having a designer of Mr. Andersen's reputation and respect on our campus is something we are happy about," Mrs. Beth Wilson, Home Economics chairman, said. "His designs have been used in major hotels, restaurants, commercial buildings and airports throughout the country, and he is and we were thrilled to have him here."

A New Yorker who has chosen Arkansas as his home, Andersen has been involved in designing professionally since 1961. His work has been published in all major interior design publications, and his work has been acclaimed in national magazines.

The University's new emphasis in interior design has attracted about 20 majors, including two who graduated last spring as the initial products of the new program.

William Hollaway

William W. Hollaway - Professor of Music, B.M.E. (1957) Henderson State University; M.M.Ed. (1959) and Ph.D. (1972) North Texas State University

It is quite usual these days for a concert by any of Harding's performing groups to include music written by William Hollaway, an Arkansan who has been a member of the University music faculty since 1966.

The professor, who began piano lessons at age six, has composed works on commission, as in the case of "Beloved, Let Us Love One Another" for the Harding Academy chorus, and "To Walk Upon A Rainbow" for the 1974 Fiftieth Anniversary celebration of Harding. Other of his works have been selected by the respective directors for their repertoire.

He has written a "Symphony for Band" in four movements, premiered by the Harding Band in 1974. Another was composed especially for clarinet and piano and introduced by another faculty member with Hollaway at a campus recital. A Hollaway composition was used at the dedication of Benson Auditorium in 1980. "Four Songs from Revelation" has been chosen by another well-known composer, George Lynn, for inclusion in his Choral Clinics.

In addition, guests at a campus dinner or students at a chapel program might be entertained by the 50-year-old bachelor who will allow three volunteers to suggest any note in the scale, including flats and sharps. Within seconds, Hollaway will, to the astonishment of the startled listeners, present melodies using those notes.

But composing is not his only interest. Students in his classes have rated him so highly that he has been named a Distinguished Professor in 1974 and 1979.

Since 1970 he has served as a sponsor of TNT men's club, a group that has adapted one of his compositions as the official club song. And since the group has grown to such large membership, he now has groups of 10-12 in his home for a meal, which he cooks himself, "... so I can get to know them better," he said.

But teaching and composing continue to capture prime time. In fact, he's just finished four songs that are already on schedule to be performed at Searcy's Beethoven Club next spring.

Senior Baritone Gets Music Honor

Senior music major Mark Brown won the Junior University Men's division in a regional audition of the National Association of Teachers of Singing at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge Nov. 8. Thirty-five singers competed in the class. The auditions had approximately 500 entrants from colleges and universities in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

A baritone, who has been selected as a host for Spring Sing '86, Brown is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harmon Brown of Searcy. He is a student of Dr. Kenneth Davis, Jr., and was accompanied in the auditions by Mike Boustead, a senior piano major from Searcy. Brown sang the prologue from Pagliacci by Leon Cavallo in the competition.

"We are extremely proud of Mark for representing Harding University so well in this competition," Dr. Davis said of his accomplishment. "This is the first time a Harding student has taken the top place in a regional meeting.

Five other Harding students reached the semi-finals of the meeting, including Lisa Blake of Overland Park, Kan.; Brad Carter of Cloverdale, Ind.; Alicia Music of Grapevine, Texas; Ann Maria Reynolds of Dayton, Ohio; and Laura White of Searcy.

Boustead and Mrs. Neva White of the Harding music faculty accompanied the group at the piano.

Other faculty members attending the session were Dr. Arthur Shearin and Dr. W. D. White. The Arkansas meeting of NATS will be held on the Harding campus on Feb. 14-15, 1986.

Building Describes Board Chairman's Life

By David Crouch

Building comes naturally for James H. Cone. He has been doing it most of his adult life.

His involvement with Harding is just another aspect of his building . . . instead of brick and steel, he is involved in building the lives of Harding students.

Cone is chairman of Harding's Board of Trustees, and he has been a member of the governing body since 1972. Yet his involvement with the school actually began in 1944 when he enrolled as a freshman. For four decades Harding has had an influence on his life.

"In the 50's and 60's I can remember the Harding slogan, 'Building better Christians and better citizens,'" said the Little Rock contractor. "I could relate to that because I was in the building business myself.

"I was proud of what Harding was achieving and the spiritual emphasis that was placed in every academic area. To borrow from both Biblical and architectural perspectives, Harding was building on a solid foundation.

"The slogan is now 'educating for eternity,' and those three words are an even more powerful statement of Harding's mission. What we're building in the lives of our students is permanent and eternal. It is a privilege to be a part of that work."

Cone and his wife Bonnie have seen the results of the Harding experience in the lives of their three children, Jimmy, Annette and Maria. This influence in the lives of his children is another reason Cone has made both a time and financial commitment to Harding.

"I've often told people that next to the church and my family, Harding is the next priority," he explained. "That's the level of importance the University has in my life." Cone is providing leadership to the Board of Trustees at one of the most significant periods in the school's history. In addition to serving as Board chairman he is also chairing the seven-member presidential search committee.

The committee was appointed 12 months ago. In May the committee announced criteria to be used to select a new president, and since that time the committee has been receiving the names of candidates for the position.

"Selecting a successor to Dr. Ganus is the single most important decision in my tenure on the Board," Cone said. "The entire board is aware that there is nothing more important currently being considered by the group. We will be making a decision that will affect Harding for decades to come."

Cone expects the search committee to meet at least once a month between December and the Board's next meeting in May 1986.

"We would like to be able to make a recommendation at the May meeting," he said, "however, we won't make a recommendation until we believe we have found the best person to lead Harding."

As expressed by Cone, the primary qualification for Harding's next chief executive officer is spiritual leadership.

"The next president will continue the spiritual leadership that has characterized his three predecessors," he explained. "We also want a person who has a vision for the future, who has excellent managerial skills, and who has fundraising skills.

"In the 20's and 30's J. N. Armstrong was a man for the times. In the 40's, 50's and the early 60's Dr. George Benson was a man for his time. Just as much so, Dr. Ganus has been a man for his time. Each man rose to the occasion and to the challenges of his presidency.

"The Board believes that there is a man for the future . . . a man to lead Harding into the 21st century. Harding will be facing some unique challenges in the next 20 years — the challenge of finances, the challenge of student recruitment and the challenge of decaying national value. The next president will be a man who can meet these challenges."

James Cone, contractor/trustee/alumnus/parent, is helping to build an institution dedicated to "educating for eternity." That might be his greatest construction project.

Christian Leadership Is Priority to Longview Trustee

By Tim Bruner

Getting a college education is an option for Richard Gibson's children. Attending anything but a Christian college is not.

"A college degree can be important and very valuable," the 48-year-old trustee from Longview, Texas said, "but it's not worth a soul . . . especially when my children are involved."

Gibson, who directs the Gibson Management Group which oversees a number of retail stores, is the immediate past chairman of Harding's Board of Trustees, having chaired the University's decision-making body from 1980-84.

Gibson says his commitment to Harding, though, stems more from his perspective as a Christian than from his membership on an institutional board.

"The spiritual emphasis at Harding is what sets it apart and makes it such a crucially needed experience for our young people," he said. "My board-level participation and support of the school are merely extensions of my conviction in the principles of Christian education, as it is offered on the Harding campus. I would be just as convicted if I were not even on the Board."

Gibson's concern for his children and the young people of the church causes him to become even more vocal about that conviction.

"I don't think some parents realize what they are doing when they send their children to state colleges and universities," he said. "It has been documented that the church is losing some 85 percent of our young people who attend those schools."

"The same parents wouldn't put their children in an environment where there existed an 85 percent chance that they'd die. But, for some reason, we parents have a tendency to put more of a priority on physical development and saving money than we do on spiritual growth and eternal life."

Only when it is too late, Gibson added, do a lot of parents understand what a difference a college decision could make in the lives of their children.

"Friendships sway us," he explained. "They always have and always will. Our college-age years are when we choose friends for a lifetime. And we narrow down the kind of friends we will select throughout the rest of our lives. Only a small minority break from the patterns they establish in college years."

"In the same way, our marriages determine a lot of our life's direction. And there is no question as to the drastic difference in the percentages of those who attend Christian colleges and marry Christians and those who don't have that advantage."

Gibson and his wife Elaine have three children, Camille, Glen and Arlene. Camille is a 1983 graduate of Harding.

"Those are three very important reasons why I believe in Christian education," Gibson said.

Added to the Harding Board in 1968, Gibson now serves on executive, academic affairs and development standing committees and the presidential search committee. Also, he chairs the Trustee committee for Board membership.

Of his work on the search committee, Gibson noted, "This has been the most awesome task I've been involved in during my 19-year association with Harding."

He explained, "Selecting a leader for an institution which produces so many of our church leaders is a humbling, almost scary, experience. But we're confident that the Lord will help us name a person capable of building on the solid foundation of Harding's past and current administrations and leading the school to continued heights of service to the brotherhood."

The Board will rely on the same Harding strengths it has leaned on in the past, according to Gibson.

"Harding has always had good, quality personnel," he explained. "Their dedication has always been a foundational strength. The uniqueness of the spiritual emphasis is another strong Harding tradition. A third Harding strength is the quality of leadership at every level of the operation, from administrators to faculty to staff.

"A fourth basic strength of the Harding experience is the love that permeates the Searcy campus and the Harding family. I've never found that closeness anywhere else, and we need that in the church."

Addressing the future of private higher education, Gibson identified Harding's most pressing need as monetary.

"The Ford Foundation has predicted that by the year 2000, four years of a private college education will cost $100,000," he said. "And the best way we can offset that eventuality is to build our endowment base."

"Using the interest from an increased endowment, we can keep our costs within a more practical reach of the average family in the church. We want Christian education to be affordable for young Christians, and we want to be able to offer more scholarships to more students. Adding to our endowment is how we can best do that."

As an elder, a father and a board member, Gibson sees Harding as the most valuable training tool available to the church and the Christian family.

"Leadership training . . ." he said, "that's what we're all about at Harding. 'The church needs leaders. Our homes need leaders. And individually we must develop our own sense of direction.'"

"At Harding, students can see that kind of leadership in the teachers under whom they study, in the roommates and friends with whom they live and in the programs that come with an academic setting of a university campus."

In Harding, young Christians find that kind of leadership training atmosphere. And in Richard Gibson, Harding finds the kind of leadership to ensure that atmosphere.

Lectureship Experiences Record Crowd Plans for '86 Lectures Underway

More than 660 out-of-town guests registered for the 1985 Bible Lectures held last month, nearly doubling last year's number and setting a 10-year high for registrants to the annual series, according to Eddie Cloer, lectureship director.

The higher number of registrants provided the core of a crowd which packed many of the daily lecture rooms. The enthusiastic response to the theme, Jesus Calls Us, continued with the nightly keynote lectures as more than 2,000 gathered in the Benson Auditorium each of the four nights, Cloer said.

"All our classes were full," Cloer reported. "I think our lectureship is going up. I think we're rebuilding a tradition."

Cloer attributed the increased attendance to several factors, including the choice of theme. Other factors included the decision to nail down a specific time when the lectures will be held each year — starting annually on the first Sunday in October.

In addition, the implementation of a youth night attracted more than 500 young people to the Monday night keynote address by Jeff Walling of Mission Viejo, Calif. The young people boosted the total night-time attendance to more than 8,000, Cloer estimated.

"The floor (of the 3,700-seat auditorium) was full and there was overflow into the balcony," Cloer said. "We probably had 500 young people present that night in addition to the usual adult audience."

"I thought the youth night was very good," Cloer continued. "We plan to have another one next year." (Walling has been invited back for the 1986 lectures.)

The final highlight of the week came when Cline Paden, former missionary to Italy, received Harding's Distinguished Christian Service Award. Harding's president, Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, presented the award just prior to Paden's keynote address, which closed the lectureship.

The 1986 lectures will begin Sunday, Oct. 5, and will run through Wednesday night, Oct. 8. The theme will be "What's Right With The Church."

From the top: Faces show intense interest while listening to John Paul Blankenship speak on youth ministry. Robert Hooper lectures on the restoration of the church before a capacity crowd. Patsy Loden's daily lecture, "A Fuller View Of The Woman's Role," was moved to the American Heritage Auditorium to accommodate the audiences which, from day one, were too large for the Bible Building classroom originally slated for the speaker. A special point is emphasized by John Lawrence as he lectures on "Ephesians: Unity In The Church." Judy Miller speaks on "Christian Home Building."

'Musical Weekend' Attracts Large Homecoming Crowd

"A Musical Weekend" was the theme as activities and reunions took place Homecoming weekend Nov. 1-2.

Alumni Director David Crouch said, "Attendance for Homecoming was excellent with exceptional crowds attending the five-year class reunions and the football game." All classes of years ending in '0 or '5 held reunions during the weekend including the honor groups, 1935 celebrating their 50th anniversary and 1960 celebrating their 25th anniversary. More than 500 attended reunions including a special reception for persons who attended classes in Morrilton.

The more than 400 guests at the Black and Gold Banquet were treated to musical entertainment after dinner by Harding alumnus David Slater. Alumni citations were presented to Jack Wood Sears (BS'40) of Searcy, as the Association's 1985 Distinguished Alumnus. Outstanding Alumni certificates from the various schools went to Dr. John M. White (BS'60) of Austin, Texas and Dr. Arthur Williams (BA'64) of Abilene, Texas, from the College of Arts and Sciences; C. Mac Angel, CPA (BA'59) of Searcy, from the School of Business; Dr. Furman Kearley (BA'56) of Manahans, Texas, from the Bible Department and Dr. Leonard Johnson (BA'35) of Montgomery, Ala., from the School of Education.

Saturday's Alumni Breakfast in the Student Center brought 350-375 together for the annual Continental Breakfast according to chairman Ron Copeland. The breakfast was also set up on a musical theme with flowers cascading from musical instruments.

As the breakfast continued, a hearty group bolted off from the Heritage building for the Bison Stampede, with participants in several age groups. Mitch McCohn and Jodie Murry were the overall winners in the men's and women's divisions. McCohn posted a time of 34:10 and Murry posted 45:22. In other special events Marty Koonce won the 20 K Bike Race in 35:02 and Tomy Sitton was the victor in the two mile run in 10:31.

Russell Showalter and Chris Clarke won the "Closest to the Pin" and "Long Driving Contests," respectively, during the "Closest to the Pin" competition. Showalter's effort was only one foot, eight inches from the pin. Runnerup was Richard Fowler and third place went to Lloyd Fraser.

The Bisons gave the large crowd of fans an exciting afternoon of football at Alumni Field just falling short to the University of Arkansas-Monticello Bollweevils, a 21-20 loss. Queen Sheryl Latimore and her court of Kellee Citty and Sandra Garner were presented at halftime.

About 2,700 saw the two performances of "The Music Man" in Benson Auditorium on Friday and Saturday nights. The Alumni Variety Show featured Slater-Wells and Co.

Club breakfasts, teas, and reunions were held throughout Searcy with high attendance. The School of Nursing held a special reunion to celebrate its 10th Anniversary in the Olen Hendrix Building.

Lady Bisons Show Improvement, Qualify For NAIA Volleyball Playoff

Overall improvement and a berth in the NAIA District 17 Playoffs highlighted the season of the Harding women's volleyball team.

Upping their overall record to 13-21, the Lady Bisons became a competitive team in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference. In only the third year of the program, the Lady Bisons have made rapid progress and have established a solid base of athletes.

"Overall, the girls made a great deal of progress this season," said coach Karyl Bailey. "Our victories over Central Arkansas and Southern Arkansas are proof of that. Now we'll have to build on their ability and competitiveness."

Harding tied with Henderson State University with 5-9 records in the AIC. The team was selected as the sixth seeded entry in the NAIA District 17 Playoff Nov. 8-9 in Arkadelphia. The Lady Bisons were defeated 3-0 by Southern Arkansas.

"It's a giant step for our girls and our program to make it to the playoffs," Bailey said. "We'll be losing two valuable seniors in Carla Wallis and Dawn Mason and you really don't replace people of their caliber."

"We're going to have a good team back. There are 10 players who have had game experience. We're going to have a better team than this year regardless of how we recruit. If we do find some recruits, it'll be a big bonus," said Bailey.

"I've really enjoyed this year. This is a good bunch of kids. It's a blessing to work with them," said Bailey. "I'd also like to thank the Board and Dr. Ganus for their support."

Harding closed its season with a 13-21 record and 5-9 mark in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference. The 13 wins sets a new school record.

Asking Bailey if they will beat the winning record, he said, "You bet, and many more, we will be competing for the conference championship, and we plan to be in the running."

Lloyd Reflects on World Games

By Al Pickett
from The Daily Citizen

In my sports memorabilia, I now have an American pin and a Russian pin from the 1985 World University Games, compliments of Harding University track and cross country coach Ted Lloyd.

Lloyd has recently returned from a fascinating 15-day stay in Kobe, Japan, where he served as assistant manager for the United States women's track team at the World University Games. He served as the coach for the American women runners in the 1500, 3,000 and 10,000 meters and the marathon.

"I've never been involved in anything like this," said Lloyd, who has coached in several international competitions. "Most of the world looks at this as second only to the Olympics. I feel like this was the opportunity of a lifetime for me."

Lloyd said that Americans don't realize the magnitude of the World University Games.

"It had a huge press corps covering it," he said. "Japanese TV televised it world-wide. It's just downplayed here in the United States. The timing of the meet is bad for our University kids. They've gone through the spring season and then they have to wait three months to compete. The kids who had been in Europe were either worn out or really ready."

Lloyd said the biggest American surprise in the meet was Don Stringer, a virtual unknown who set an American record with a leap of 58-8 in the triple jump. That's the third best performance in the world ever. The Americans won 69 medals, more than they have ever won in the World University Games which are held every two years.

"We had several kids in Europe that could have been gold medalists," Lloyd said. He listed Razorbacks Roddy Haley and Mike Conley and Houston's Kirk Baptiste among those who were eligible to compete in the World University Games but instead were "competing for bucks in Europe."

Nearly 5,000 athletes from 120 countries lived together in the village, making it second only to the Olympics in the size of the competition.

"It's quite an amazing situation," Lloyd said of the village. "It's amazing how well you can communicate sometimes with someone who can't speak English or how poorly you can communicate sometimes with someone who does speak English, but doesn't speak it very well. English is the official language if there is a rulebook interpretation."

"Everyone loved the Japanese," he continued. "They were so friendly and so helpful. But I think the Americans were the favorite team. Everyone wanted to trade for U.S. pins and uniforms."

Lloyd collected pins from athletes from nearly 40 different countries.

"I've never signed so many autographs," he said. "The Japanese kids were always hanging around our athletes. I'd always sign USA with my autographs and the kids loved it. All the Europeans speak some English. They'd wear you out trying to practice their English."

In addition to attending the World University Games, Lloyd had the opportunity to do a little sight-seeing. He visited Kyoto, the ancient Japanese capital, a Buddhist temple and a Shogun castle. He also visited Osaka and rode the Japanese bullet train.

Perhaps his most interesting experience was a lengthy session with the Russian coaches.

"They were very friendly," Lloyd said of the Russians. "They invited us to a get-acquainted and talk session. It lasted about two hours. I don't know if there was any high-level exchange, but it was interesting. They wanted to know how our athletes train."

"They couldn't understand why our name athletes didn't become coaches. Here, if the top athletes have name recognition, they are marketable for a company. In Russia the most prestigious and the highest paying job is to be a coach. People who have been involved in international competition before said that they were the friendliest and most cooperative they had ever seen the Russians."

Bisons Win 15th Straight AIC Title; Women Place Third

Paced by individual winner Al Bates, the University's men's cross-country team captured a 15th consecutive Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championship, Friday, Nov. 1, on the campus of Henderson State University.

Harding's Lady Bisons managed to match last year's third-place AIC finish, despite placing two runners in the top 10, an improvement over their 1984 results.

Bates' time of 24:35 for the five-mile course set a new course record. The effort made Bates the first individual AIC champion for Harding since 1981 when Carter Lambert took the honor.

"Al did a tremendous job," commented Bisons Coach Ted Lloyd. "He ran under 25 minutes for the second time in his career. He did a fine job."

Other Harding runners placing for points were Eddie Neal (5th), Darryl Halbert (8th), Larry Wayne (9th) and Rich Lockhart (12th), giving the Bisons the low team score of 35 points. Second place went to Ouachita Baptist University with a score of 50 points. The University of Arkansas-Monticello garnered 81 points for third.

In the women's division UAM's Kerri Shepherd took first and her teammate, Paula Daniel, took second in leading their team to a first-place tie with defending champion Arkansas College.

Sophomore Beverly Gardner captured

third for the Lady Bisons in her second All-AIC performance. She was followed in fifth place by Teresa Durham, who also received All-AIC honors.

Other Harding finishers and their places were: Leigh Bassett (14), Marlene Eno (17), Sarah Jimenez (21), Ruth Meechum (22) and Joan Cigrang (26).

The Lady Bisons finished with 60 points and were followed by Arkansas Tech University with 85 points and the University of Central Arkansas with 117.

The meet also served as the NAIA District 17 championship, the qualifying event for the NAIA Nationals in Kenosha, Wis.

For the Lady Bisons, Gardner and Durham earned a trip to the nationals and All-District honors to go with their All-AIC designations.

The Bisons' top four runners — Bates, Neal, Halbert and Wayne — claimed All-AIC and All-District honors.

Editor's note: At press time the Bulletin learned that the Bisons cross-country team captured 14th at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Cross-country Championships in Kenosha, Wis.

The Bisons raced on a soggy, eight-kilometer course and, for the first time this year, in sub-40 degree temperatures. Senior Al Bates lead the Harding effort, placing 57th out of 355 runners.

Bates Leads Bisons — Harding senior Al Bates placed 57th in the NAIA National Cross Country Championship in Kenosha, Wis. A native of Nashville, Tenn., Bates was the 1985 Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference individual champion. Immediately behind Bates is senior Larry Wayne of Fairhope, Ala., and right is junior Eddie Neal of Griffithville, Ark.

'Thrill of victory, agony of defeat', Experienced By Bison Footballers

After blitzing out to a 5-0 record at mid-season, injuries have played havoc with the Harding football team and the Bisons stand 5-3 as the season draws to a close.

"Injuries to key personnel are always a big factor in our league," Bison head coach John Prock said. "We simply don't have the depth to handle them."

Mid-season success had vaulted the Bisons to a number three ranking in the NAIA Top Twenty Poll. Three consecutive losses, however, have tumbled Harding out of the ratings.

Since defeating the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff 10-7 on October 9, the Bisons have dropped consecutive decisions to Henderson State 35-21, the University of Arkansas-Monticello 21-20 and Southern Arkansas 17-3.

"We just didn't play well enough when we needed to," Prock said. "We've not been outclassed by anybody; we've been competitive all the way."

In the victory over UAPB, the Bisons' All-America halfback candidate Glenn Segars went out with a knee injury. He has not played since. At the time of his injury Segars had rushed for 459 yards and was averaging more than 100 yards per game.

In the annual Homecoming game, the loss to UA-Monticello, Harding fought back in the second and scored in the final minute of play. Trailing 21-20, the Bisons elected to go for a two-point effort on the point after but were unsuccessful.

Harding closes its 1985 season at home against Ouachita Baptist University and finishes out against the University of Central Arkansas at Conway.

Nine seniors will complete their football careers for the Bisons. They are defensive end Matt Clouser of Huntsville, Ala., tackle Scott Franklin of Dunwoody, Ga., tackle Wes Hunt of Denison, Texas, defensive back Drake Jackson of Temple, Texas, linebacker Franz Patterson of Killeen, Texas, noseguard Fanasial "Dump" Quinn of West Point, Miss., center James Smith of West Helena, Ark., and fullback Z.C.O. Uhatafe of St. Petersburg, Fla.

McKelvain Presents Findings on Sports Research

Harding University psychologist Dr. Bob McKelvain was one of 110 speakers at the International Scientific Congress in Montreal, Canada, Oct. 30-Nov. 2.

More than 400 delegates, including representatives from the Soviet Union and other Eastern Bloc countries, attended the conference held in conjunction with the World Championships in Gymnastics.

McKelvain, an associate professor of psychology, served as chairman of a symposium titled "Founded on the Future, Sport Sciences in Elite Sport Development Programs." He presented a paper titled "Managing Innovation in Sport: A Research and Development Model for Sport Science."

He served as co-author of two other presentations. With Dr. Glyn Roberts, Director of Graduate Study in Physical Education at the University of Illinois, he presented "Motivational Goals of Elite Young Gymnasts." The "Profiling and Screening of Elite Gymnasts" was co-authored with Dr. Mark Grabiner, Director of the Biomechanics Laboratory at the University of Southern California.

The focus of McKelvain's presentation was the application of industrial management techniques to bring sport and sport sciences together for more cooperative efforts. Specifically, the role of the "manager" of research and development, a position normally applied to business, for sports.

"What we're doing is simply communicating the basic principles of working together," he said. "There is a gap in cooperation and communication between psychologists and coaches; so we're presenting a model that can help them move toward more interaction."

When considering the average person's perception of a psychologist who aids athletes, McKelvain feels that there is a certain misconception about their role.

"The attention that the media gives to sports psychologists places them at the competition site with a troubled athlete. That's a very incorrect picture because if an athlete has psychological problems during the competition, then the psychologist has failed already," McKelvain explained.

"The psychologist's role is more to train coaches and help them to develop a training program which allows the athletes to be emotionally resilient."

Bob McKelvain

McKelvain, who has done extensive work with the U.S. Olympic and Junior Olympic gymnastics programs, said the basic reasons for continuing study in the sports sciences are to improve coaches' skills, to develop a safer, healthier experience for the gymnasts and to keep the athletes in the sport and enjoying participation.

McKelvain believes his experience is beneficial to the students at Harding because it provides recognition exposure for the University's academic program and benefits the University's athletic program and its athletes.
